Bringing training and graduate programmes to the workplace or facilitating remote set up, ensuring delegates can maximise learning from the start

Graduate programmes and training courses will often mean an influx of temporary staff or delegates all requiring additional IT hardware. This can be time consuming for your internal resources and costly to procure and maintain.

IT & AV hire solutions allow you to pay for the use of the hardware on an 'as-needed' basis, keeping your costs under control, IT resources focused on their day-to-day tasks and ensuring the latest technology is available.

Our IT & AV rental services are ideal for all training and graduate requirements. Our customers can benefit from:

- Dedicated account manager – Your account manager will be there to help answer questions and guide you through the rental process, before, during and after the rental.
- Pre-delivery technical support – All hardware is tested and configured prior to delivery and telephone support is in place for the duration of the rental. We can fully configure a solution that will match your requirements.
- Logistics and installation services – We understand the complexity of delivering to a multitude of different locations, regardless of whether you require delivery only, or a full installation service too.
- On-site technical support – We can arrange on-site technical support for the duration of your requirement. Our certified engineer can be on-hand to help with any hardware issues that may arise.
- Project management - Your account manager can provide on-site project support, ensuring your solution is installed to your exact requirement and any issues are rectified swiftly.
- De-rig and collection services – A logistics and engineering team will be assigned to collect the equipment, aiming to make your post-rental experience as stress free as possible.

We help our training & graduate programme clients provision delegates and attendees with the IT hardware technologies they need - anywhere in the UK.

Providing a highly cost-effective and efficient solution for any organisation that needs to train multiple people, or furnish temporary delegates with IT or AV hardware.
